Course Description

Why is there a “trade war” with China? Is it good for us or not? Why did the UK vote for Brexit, but can’t seem to actually do it? Why don’t we just lock down our borders and refuse trade with anyone? This course focuses on questions like these, and others that are common in the social scientific study of international political economy (IPE). IPE rests at the intersection of economics and international relations, and focuses on questions where this intersection takes place. For example, we will discuss how international trade affects a country’s domestic population, and how that changes policy. Conversely, we will examine the political interactions that resulted in the international organizations that coordinate and affect international trade.

During the course we will focus on both the theories of international political economy, and several topic areas such as monetary relations, trade, and development. You will be asked throughout the class to think about and discuss the interactions between local and national politics, policy and economics, and the roles of all the actors in the international system. Throughout the class, more technical discussions will be supplemented with examinations of real-world examples.

This class will be conducted online, but students are free to stop by my office if the door is open. It is also a Writing Enhanced course. As a result, 50% of the course grade will come from writing assignments.

Course Material

There are no required textbooks for this course. Instead, readings for each week will be posted as PDFs to the course Blackboard page. Students are responsible for reading the assigned articles during the week they are assigned.

Readings will be accompanied each week by posted lecture slides that hit the highlights of the reading material and other course content. There will also be brief recordings available to guide thinking for the week.

Grading

Your final course grade will be calculated from the following sources:

1. Weekly Reading Quizzes: 75 (5 points per week)
2. Weekly Reading Reflections: 75 (5 points per week)
3. Literature Review Topic Proposal: 10 points
4. Literature Review Rough Draft: 25 points
5. Literature Review Second Draft: 50 points
6. Literature Review Final Draft: 100 points

Reading Quizzes

There will be a five-question reading quiz each week. Questions will come directly from the literature assigned as reading.

Weekly Reflections

Each week, students will be expected to make at least one post in response to one of several guiding questions for the week. This is where students will apply the ideas and concepts in the week's content. Responses must be at least a paragraph and directly back up their thoughts with something from the assigned readings.

Literature Reviews

Even if you wind up hating political economy, or never use this class (or a Political Science Major), the most important skill you can take from this class is practicing your writing. No matter the job you do after your time at Sam Houston, knowing how to ask questions, find and organize evidence, and describe that to others is an essential skill.

Because this is a writing enhanced course, students will spend the entire semester working on a literature review about a topic of their choice related to political economy. At each stage, from proposal to final draft, there will be opportunities for students to get feedback and advice from the instructor. As assignment deadlines get closer, there will be further instructions posted to Blackboard.

Grading Scale

A: 90-100

B: 80-89

C: 70-79

D: 60-69

F: Below 60

Blackboard

All communication for this course will be conducted via the course's Blackboard site and University email. Any supplementary material, assignments, or changes to the course structure will be made available on this site. Each student should ensure that they have access to these materials and are able to receive emails through their student account. Please note that I cannot accept or respond to student emails that come from a non-university address.

Information and University Policies

Academic Dishonesty:

All students are expected to engage in all academic pursuits in a manner that is above reproach. Students are expected to maintain honesty and integrity in the academic experiences both in and out of the classroom. Any student found guilty of dishonesty in any phase of academic work will be subject to disciplinary action. The University and its official representatives may initiate disciplinary proceedings against a student accused of any form of academic dishonesty including but not limited to, cheating on an examination or other academic work which is to be submitted, plagiarism, collusion and the abuse of resource materials. For a complete listing of the university policy, see:

http://www.shsu.edu/~slo_www/

Student Absences on Religious Holy Days Policy:

Section 51.911(b) of the Texas Education Code requires that an institution of higher education excuse a student from attending classes or other required activities, including examinations, for the observance of a religious holy day, including travel for that purpose. Section 51.911 (a) (2) defines a religious holy day as: "a holy day observed by a religion whose places of worship are exempt from property taxation under Section 11.20...." A student whose absence is excused under this subsection may not be penalized for that absence and shall be allowed to take an examination or complete an assignment from which the student is excused within a reasonable time after the absence.

University policy 861001 provides the procedures to be followed by the student and instructor. A student desiring to absent himself/herself from a scheduled class in order to observe (a) religious holy day(s) shall present to each instructor involved a written statement concerning the religious holy day(s). The instructor will complete a form notifying the student of a reasonable timeframe in which the missed assignments and/or examinations are to be completed. For a complete listing of the university policy, see:

<http://www.shsu.edu/dept/academic-affairs/documents/aps/students/861001.pdf>

Students with Disabilities Policy:

It is the policy of Sam Houston State University that individuals otherwise qualified shall not be excluded, solely by reason of their disability, from participation in any academic program of the university. Further, they shall not be denied the benefits of these programs nor shall they be subjected to discrimination. Students with disabilities that might affect their academic performance should register with the Office of Services for Students with Disabilities located in the Lee Drain Annex (telephone 936-294-3512, TDD 936-294-3786, and e-mail disability@shsu.edu). They should then make arrangements with their individual instructors so that appropriate strategies can be considered and helpful procedures can be developed to ensure that participation and achievement opportunities are not impaired.

SHSU adheres to all applicable federal, state, and local laws, regulations, and guidelines with respect to providing reasonable accommodations for students with disabilities. If you have a disability that may affect adversely your work in this class, then I encourage you to register with the SHSU Services for Students with Disabilities and to talk with me about how I can best help you. All disclosures of disabilities will be kept strictly confidential. NOTE: No accommodation can be made until you register with the Services for Students with Disabilities. Emergencies, Crises, and Mental Health

Sometimes the study of Political Science involves dealing with difficult material. In some cases, these may reflect or reference your own personal, family, or group experiences.

Other times, life events may interfere with your ability to succeed in class. We do not want to neglect our own health or well-being. If you need support, the Counseling Center can be reached at 936-294-1720. The website also contains self-help resources, and those services available in the Huntsville community.

As with all other parts of the course, students are welcome and encouraged to come talk to me to voice their concerns, seek support, or discuss accommodation for coursework after a crisis.
